PROLOGUE

Nora tapped her wand impatiently on the kitchen table before speaking to Camelin.

'I'm sure I'm right, Jack Brenin is The One.'

'He can't be, he's so small and weedy; he's supposed to be strong and brave.'

Nora thought for a while before she spoke again.

'He's a Brenin.'

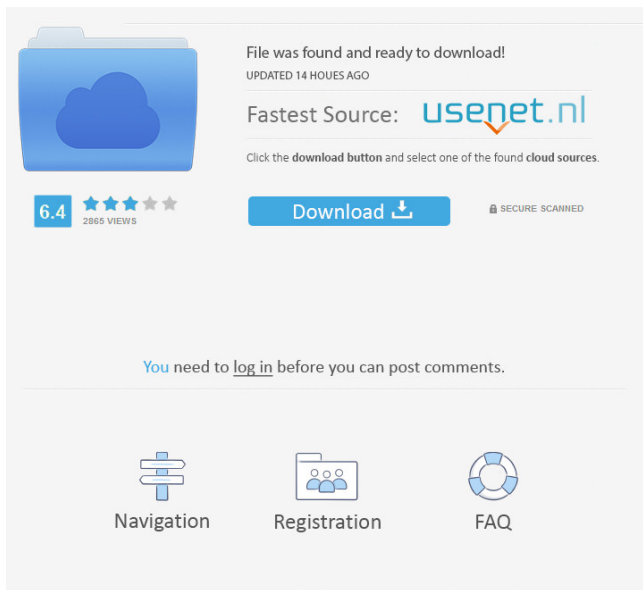

'Well, there has to be a better Brenin than this one.'

'The prophecy's quite clear and this Brenin was born on the right night, in the right place and at the right time. The trees have been watching him since he arrived, they seem satisfied he's The One.'

'The trees could be wrong,' Camelin mumbled in case he was overheard. He knew how fast word could travel from one tree to another. If Arrana, the ancient Hamadryad, heard him he'd be in big trouble. She lived in the oldest Oak tree in the heart of Glasruhen Forest and was always very well informed.

'I'm sure he'll help us. If he doesn't all will be lost. He's our last
